BATTLESHIP GIFT A JERSEY BULL

Connecticut Breeder Sends Four-Legged Dime to Help Preparedness.

DREADNOUGHT NEVER TOO PROUD TO FIGHT

Contribution Accepted, and Plans Are Under Way to Add Him to Fund.

Presented to the Battleship Fund, a Jersey bull! The news of this unusual gift to an unusual cause came from the huckleberry hills at New Cansan, Conn., where the animal first saw light on March 22, 1915, at Peaceful Nook Farm. Arthur Louis Benedict, justice of the peace of Fairfield County and New Canaan, who has bred high grade Jersey cattle since 1904 in the hills over-looking Long Island Sound, sent these lines with the letter announcing his contribution:

"From the quiet realm of Peaceful Nook I send you 'Dreadnought,' young and

He has a bright and snappy look.
I think you'll find, twixt me and you,
No prudish views of duty's call
Obscure the path whereon he treads
And hover o'er it like a pall.
So, when as chief a herd he heads,
And rules supreme in strength and might.

Dreadnought of Peaceful Nock, as the belligerent young animal has been fittingly named, is a typical pure-bred Renealer Louise France Monderinger and Light local snows from the northern upper take Jersey, according to his owner. Mr. Jersey, according to his owner. Mr. Jersey, according him entered upon the books of the American Jersey Cattle Club, as the animal has a pedigree that speaks for itself.

"If you see any way through which this gift can be turned into cash," wrote Mr. Benedict, "or used as an object lesson before the gaze of the many thousands of farmers in this country, who, above all, ought to be interested in the construction of this noted battleship for the preservation of the peace and liberties of the citizens of the world, I shall be pleased to hear from you to that effect.

"Peaceful Nook Farm is located on an extreme border of New Canann, on one of our highest ridges, and commands a view of Long Island Sound with a pleasant sweep of country to the west and north. I gave it this name because it is the quietest and most peaceful location I know of. At times I can understand conversation carried on at one of my neighbor's one mile distant down in the valley.

"All the cattle I have were bred and raised by myself, and while my cows, like most Jerseys, are not heavy milkers, yet the butter fat content enables me to get satisfactory returns in cream. "I have, like my sire before me, read The Tribune all my life, and while, as the saying is, 'I could find a bene or two to pick with it,' yet in general I admire its methods of treating most subjects, and I sincerely hope its success in

Mr. Benedict has been notified that his generous gift has been accepted and arrangements will soon be made to dispose of the animal to advantage.

CALLS MARIORIE'S ACT Mrs. A. J. George Makes Strong
Plea for Prenaged

That the woman who does not "raise her boy to be a soldier" may be raising him to be a sacrifice, was the argument that Mrs. A. J. George, of Washington, secretary of the National Security Aid, presented last night to more than one hundred business women at a meeting of the Public Interest League at The Fernery, 22 East Thirty third Street.

"That absurd song first shocked me into the realization that in our national into the realization that in our national wegative." That absurd song first shocked me into the realization; that in our national lack of preparedness we are inculcating cowardice in an entire nation, said Mrs. George, "My friend, Dr. Walton, writer of several books, is going to write another, called 'Meanwhile Amriorie.' Everybody else was in a mere hysteria of words when a little girl over in Brooklyn had to come to the rescue, through the columns of The New York Tribune. It was a sound, "Briogs mail." the rescue, through the columns of The New York Tribune. It was a sound, fine thing that the child should be trying to do something, not seeking an emotional outlet in words, as the nation has been doing."

Mrs. George said that she found in Washington such a deplorable condition of unpreparedness that she almost thought the trouble in Mexico was heaven-sent to test the national weakness.
